Lion Oilers to Oppose Murry of Prescott in Second Contest

ONLY 2 GAMES HERE
Balance of Inter-District Tournament Goes to Warren

Winners of the Hope and El Dorado district softball tournaments will meet in an inter-district play-off here Wednesday night to determine which teams will represent this section in the state tournament at Little Rock.

The winner and runner-up of this tournament will be eligible for the state meet.

The opening round finds Warren, winner of the El Dorado district, opposing East Federal Home of Texarkana, runner-up of the Hope district, in the first game at 8 o'clock.

The second game at 9 p. m. will be fought between Murray Auto Service team of Prescott, winner of the Hope district, and Lion Oilers of El Dorado, runner-up of the El Dorado tournament.

Officials Named
Softball Commissioner Earl Erion telephoned The Star from El Dorado Wednesday morning that four umpires would officiate, two from Hope and two from El Dorado.

Head umpire is expected to be Ralph Combs of Hope, assisted by Raymond Urban of El Dorado. Names of the two El Dorado umpires were not announced.

Mr. Erion said Warren had an exceptionally fast ball club, featuring Ed and Lester Carey, twin pitchers. Elmo Chaney and Zobe Perry, former Ouachita college stars, also are members of the Warren team which is managed by G. C. Morgan.

The El Dorado team has "Windmill" Moore and Frank Mosely for pitchers, as well as several former college and University stars as team mates.

Pegerson and Robinson compose the Prescott pitching staff. East Federal Home has Campbell and Hare. All of the pitchers except those from Warren have been seen in action here this season.

Only 2 Games Here
Hope fans will have their last opportunity to see these teams in action this season as the tournament site will be moved to Warren for two games next Saturday night.

If other games are necessary to determine the winner and runner-up, they will be played at Warren next week, Softball Commissioner Erion announced.

The admission for Wednesday night's games will be 10 and 25 cents.

'Future Farmers' Meet Wednesday

12th Annual State Convention Meeting at Camp Couchdale

According to information received by W. Chambers, vocational agriculture instructor, from Fred A. Smith, state director for vocational education, the twelfth annual state convention of the Arkansas Association of Future Farmers of America will meet at Hot Springs Camp Couchdale, Aug. 23-25. Mr. Smith requests that all teachers of vocational agriculture, local chapter F.F.A. delegates, and candidates for the Arkansas Farmer Degree be present on time and remain throughout the period of the convention.

The Laneburg (Central) F. F. A. chapter will be represented by Gerald Rexvay and Weldon Smith as official delegates to exercise the voting strength of the local chapter. While these two delegates are attending the state convention they will take examinations for the Arkansas Farmers' Degree which is the highest honor the state can confer on an F. F. A. member. Since this is the first attempt of ever made by a member of the Laneburg chapter of Future Farmers of America for such degree there is very much interest in their success. Their applications for the degree have been sent to the state department of education and have already been graded under the supervision of the state director of Vocational Agriculture, Fred A. Smith.

Others making the trip with Laneburg (Central) F. F. A. members, included delegates from the Hope chapter and their adviser, Mr. R. E. Jackson, vocational agriculture instructor in the Hope High School. The convention opened officially at noon Wednesday, August 23 and will close at noon Friday.

- Answers on Page Two

Coney Island is democracy with its shirt off. It is rowdy and untidy and unbecomingly lowbrow. You can find all races and colors at Coney—and, on its incredibly congested sands, all shapes as well, from the sublime to the ridiculous.

It boasts of a dozen bath houses, 10 roller coasters, the world's biggest ferris wheel and a average summer-Sunday consumption of something like 800,000 hot dogs. On a holiday, like July 4 it, draws more than a million visitors.

Habit and Curiosity
All of which merely states its rough outlines. Basically, Coney is two and one-half miles of beach, fresh air, and sunlight. Some of its visitors come just because they have the habit, and some of them—the out-of-towners—come because they have heard about Coney all their lives and want to take one look at the place before they die.

But most of Coney's visitors—who, for this year, are going to total close to 70,000,000 people—come because it is the only place they know of where they can buy sunlight, fresh air, and a little coolness for a nickel. And, if the can't buy those things for a nickel, they have to do without them.

So much for Coney. Come along now to another American bathing beach a couple of hundred miles away—Bailey's Beach, at Newport, R. I.

You won't find a greater contrast in America. Bailey's Beach is the exclusive private beach of the Newport summer colony. It is a strip of sand perhaps 100 yards wide and half a mile long, nicely fenced in, and buttressed on its landward side by a neat two-story brick administration building, a row of cabanas, a bar, a restaurant, and a dance pavilion.

You join this club—its official name, by the way, is the Spunkin' Rock Beach Association—by invitation, and you pay $300 for three shares of stock. In addition, if you want a cabana, you pay $750 more. There are, of course, annual dues besides.

On a weekend in July or August—or during that great gathering known as Tennis Week, the place will get a good-sized crowd—as many as 500 people, sometimes.

Fundamentally, both of these beaches (Bailey's and Coney) sell the same wares—water, sand, fresh air, and sunlight. In a sense, they sell something else, too, at Bailey's a sense of belonging to the top flight—at Coney, a sense of being an inextricable part of a singularly tolerant, casual, non-class-conscious proletariat.

Bailey's Gives Privacy
Bailey's adds privacy, which Coney can't provide. If you can get a 10 by 10 piece of sand for yourself and your family at Coney, you can count yourself lucky.

Photographers aren't likely to bother you at either place. They're rigidly barred at Bailey's. The experiment of letting them in was tried one Sunday this summer, but the boys insisted on photographing people who didn't especially want to be photographed, and the experiment is off. And the only thing photographers do at Coney is fly overhead in a plane once in a while to get an air view of half million bathers at once.

As I say, it's quite a contrast. It isn't brought up here to arouse class feeling or to point of moral. America is a free country, and each of these beaches gives full satisfaction to its patrons.

But anyone who is interested in politics ought to take a look at both places. They represent two extremes in American life. The politician has to take both extremes into consideration. Which group is he going to try to please?

I wouldn't know how to advise him except to remark that when everything else has been considered, there are just naturally an awful lot more Coney Islanders than Bailey's Beachers.

Errors Corrected in Fair Catalog

Public's Attention Called to Changes in County Fair Book

The 1939 Catalog of premiums and awards of the Hempstead County Fair Association is now ready for distribution. Any one who is interested may obtain one from the County Agent or the Extension Office.

Due to haste in getting out the catalog and failure to proof read it thoroughly there are a few mistakes that should be called to the attention of the public.

In the advertising on page 12 the Hope Brick Works advertised 1500 bushels of oats at $1.50. This should have been 1500 bushels at 50c a bushel. On page 9 the Superintendent of the Dairy Cattle Department is shown as Norman Guy. This should be Herman Guy.

In the Poultry Show Department on page 16, lot No. 3 was omitted. Lot No. 3 provides prizes for Rhode Island Reds as is offered other lots. Also classes 5 and 6 of all lots of poultry should read $1.00 for first prize, and ribbons for second and third prizes.

On page 30-31-32 the Junior Department includes exhibits by F. F. A. members as well as Four H Club members.

Build Snow Cruiser for the South Pole

In this scientific snow-juggernaut, four men will spend months in the Antarctic. With food and fuel for a year stowed in the cruiser's lockers, they will operate independent of base, but in constant touch with it by two-way radio. The plane-mount atop the cruiser makes it virtually a traveling air field, and short hops can be made from time to time for further observation.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Writer

CHICAGO—(P)—Lumbering ponderously over the roads from Chicago to Boston will go, about Oct. 1, as strange a vehicle as ever seen on land or sea. This "snow cruiser" or polar pullman, is being constructed for the Byrd Antarctic expedition which sets out for the south polar region, with government backing, in mid-October.

Never before has man conceived or dared try to build a vehicle which, like this one, will travel on its own power over most of an Antarctic area as big as all the United States plus Mexico, carrying four men, provisions for them for a year, and an airplane with its supplies. It is virtually a portable airfield.

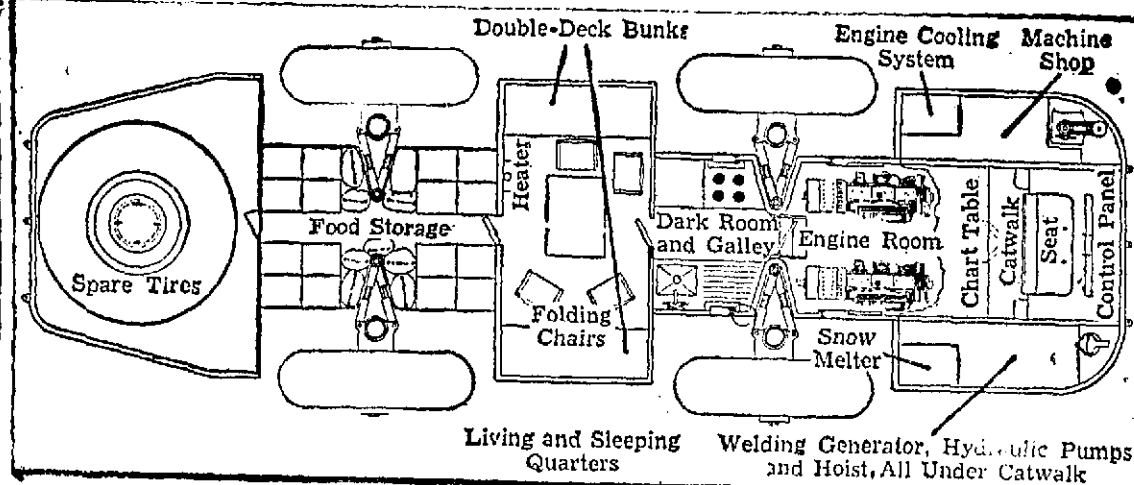

The snow cruiser is being built at the Pullman plant here as "The Antarctic Snow Cruiser" Project of the Research Foundation of Armour Institute of Technology. It will cost about $150,000, complete with scientific equipment. Its crew of four, one of whom will be Dr. F. Alton Wade, expects to camp three months on the South Pole.

Will Cross Crevasse
Driving of such a vehicle from Chicago to Boston is itself quite a job. The Bureau of Public Roads had to be called on to work out a route which would accommodate this juggernaut with its 55 feet of length, its enormous rubber-tired wheels on 15-foot centers.

All the experience of his former trips to the polar regions with Admiral Byrd is being incorporated into the snow cruiser by Dr. Thomas C. Paulter, designer.

The south polar region is smooth, and does not break up into floes like that area surrounding the North Pole. Nevertheless, the cruiser is designed to cross ice crevasses 15 feet wide.

Take Giant Tires
Cargantuan tires for the machine are now being completed by Goodrich at Akron. The cruiser will carry

"Ground Plan" of the Antarctic Snow Cruiser shows the living room in which four men will pass months in the Antarctic. The store-rooms contain food and fuel for a year, and, aside from living quarters, there will be scientific apparatus for observation and the analysis of minerals and development of pictures.

PARIS, France.—(P)—France Wednesday night ordered partial mobilization after an emergency meeting of the National Defense Council, bringing the French army to upwards of 1 1-2 million men under arms.

BERLIN, Germany.—(P)—D.N.B., the official German news agency, reported Wednesday Polish cannon fired at two German civilian transport planes. Neither was hit.

BERLIN, Germany.—(P)—Reliable sources declared Wednesday afternoon that Adolf Hitler told Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador, that Germany could not modify her demands or vital rights because of the British guaranty to Poland.

These demands and "vital rights," it is understood, were:

1. Uncondition return of Danzig to the Reich.
2. Return of sections of Poland which once were German.
3. Re-arrangement of Polish-German relations much along the lines of the German protectorate over Bohemia and Moravia.

According to advices that are considered reliable, Hitler is determined to settle the dispute in one of two ways—either Poland yields peacefully, or she fights, in which case Germany will see to it that a new partition of Poland occurs.

London reported he was sent to deliver a declaration that Britain's guarantee to Poland remains unchanged by the projected German-Soviet Russian non-aggression pact—and that Britain is determined to aid Poland if necessary.

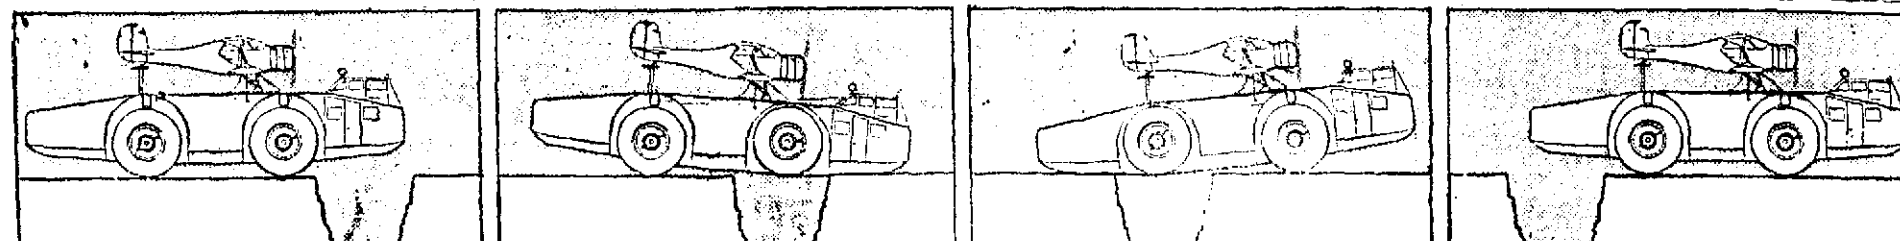

It was officially disclosed that Henderson had been instructed to say that his government is "determined to resist to the utmost" any resort to force by Germany which Poland considered a threat to her independence and chose to resist.

In Berlin well informed sources said Hitler had sent British Prime Minister Chamberlain a detailed memorandum on Germany's uncompromising position, and was believed to have

How the snow cruiser will cross ice chasms. It is so built that its projecting nose will overhang any crevasse it is likely to meet. It is driven up to the edge until the front wheels reach the rim. Then—

The front wheels are retracted up into the body by means of hydraulic machinery inside the cruiser. This lowers the nose of the vehicle until it rests flush on the ice on the far side. Then the rear wheels push it forward, until—

The front wheels now being above the far edge of the ice surface, the rear wheels are retracted, setting the rear end flush on the ice. The front wheels are then extended again so that the front end rests normally on its wheels—

Whereupon the front wheels pull the whole thing across. Once the rear wheels have cleared the farther edge of the crevasse, they are again lowered, and now the vehicle stands on all four wheels again.

Pollen Flying on Every Breeze: Hay Fever Allergies Begin to Sneeze

August marks the beginning of the giant ragweed pollination in the United States. All over the country the hay fever sufferers are beginning to sneeze and to sniff the air anxiously trying to find out whether or not the season has really begun.

The giant ragweed is abundant in the agricultural areas of the Central, Southern and Eastern states. Giant ragweed is infrequent or absent from Florida, upper New England and eastern Canada.

The fall type of hay fever is due chiefly to the pollination of weeds of various kinds. It is possible to obtain relief for some people by desensitizing them with extracts of ragweed pollen. Doctors report that as many as 40 per cent of patients obtain full relief, and that they get better results in an additional 30 per cent. People who are sensitive to grasses get better results than those who are sensitive to ragweed.

Desensitization must begin long before the time when the pollens are profuse in the air. It should really begin several months before hand. Some experts in the treatment of hay-fever carry on injections right through the season. Many doctors are not much inclined to give treatment during the season, and feel that it should be given only in advance of the time when the pollens are present. There are still others who believe that desensitization should be carried on continuously in season and out of season as the only means of keeping the patient less sensitive to ragweed.

Throughout the country people are beginning to understand that ragweed is a nuisance. East Orange, New Jersey, has a law that defines the growth of ragweed on any public or private property as a nuisance. No state has yet enacted a law requiring the destruction of ragweed, but some states have laws demanding the destruction of noxious weeds in general, and include ragweed in this classification.

In some states, notably Illinois, the governor was asked by the legislature to designate certain days in August as "weed destruction" days. One community provided a bounty for every bundle of 50 ragweeds, but the money appropriated to pay the bounty was insufficient and was exhausted during the first two days of the campaign. Results of the two-day campaign indicated that not much had been accomplished.

In one city almost $200,000 was spent to destroy ragweed, and yet the air continued to be contaminated by the pollens. Notwithstanding these failures in attacks on the cause of the fall type of hay fever, it should be endeavored to eliminate much of the ragweed pollens as possible.

WITH JUDAS IN JERUSALEM

Jerusalem in the days before the Crucifixion—a city teeming with people, a city torn by hatred, fear, a city rejoicing in the coming of the Savior. This is the picture Eric Linklater skillfully depicts in his novel "Judas" (Farrar and Rinehart: $2). Judas explains his motives for betraying Christ in the following quotation:

"I did what I did because I had to. Not for money. All the money in the world couldn't have paid me for what I did. You say I loved Him, and that's true. Truer than you think. Because I loved Him as a child loves anything that gives it life.

"He gave me peace of heart. . . . Till He began to change—and He did change. He said, long ago, that He had not come to bring peace but a sword, but I didn't believe Him. . . . He had said "Blessed are the peacemakers. Blessed are the meek. . . . He had no need for swords.

"But then I saw it was true, and He was going to set a man against His father, and make his household his enemies. And that was not peace, but war and death. And how could I love death and the teaching of death?"

"I saw Him scattering money on the floors of the Temple and that was destruction. . . . I saw a man killed. . . . and that could have happened to us all. So I gave Him up, and saved the people from death. I gave Him up, though I loved Him, and I saved the life of all the people of the city."

The assessed valuation of property in the United States is estimated by the Department of Commerce at 139 billion dollars.

Quota System Washed Up by Immigration Tide

Because the world today is such a different world from that of 1924, the immigration quota system enacted at that time is having unexpected effects.

When the quota system was proposed, the background was roughly this: Congress apparently felt that immigration in the early 1900s was overly weighted with people from the south and southeast of Europe. So it set up a quota system, assigning to each foreign country an annual number of immigrants which should be a certain percentage of the number of people who had already come to the United States from the same country at an arbitrary date in the past. The date and quotas were so set as to give larger quotas to northern Europeans, and to cut the quotas from the southern and eastern European countries.

For some years it appeared to work fairly well toward the end sought. Then came the depression. Immigration stopped almost entirely. During the first few years of business depression, almost no country filled its allowable quota, and for a time there was even a flow of the immigrant tide back to Europe.

The nine dictatorships tightened their grip on several European countries and organized religious and racial persecution as a state policy began to appear. Instantly the applications for immigration visas from the countries affected began to rise.

So today we have a curious situation in regard to immigration, one not imagined by those who framed the law of 1924. It is this: Immigration from Central Europe, which fell under its quotas for many years, is now dammed up behind the quota wall in overwhelming masses. These quotas will automatically be filled to overflowing for many years. Yet quotas from countries like Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, France, Holland, Switzerland, and Scandinavia are not nearly filled. As a result, the bulk of our immigration in the foreseeable future is going to come from almost the very countries which the act of 1924 sought to make a minority. In point of fact, last year a numerical majority of all immigrants came from Germany.

This makes it clear that the basic immigration act of 1924 is no longer a suitable basis for an immigration policy. When the working of an act is such as to bring about a result contrary to the purposes of the act, it is time somebody suggests restudy and redrafting of the law.

The present working of the immigration act is such as to suggest that the whole policy ought to be reconsidered. It should be studied not in the light of the prejudices of some string-tie and white-vest legislator from the canebrakes or the ragged ridges, but in the light of a real and thorough investigation of the country's needs and capacities, never forgetting the turn of events by which the world has presented the United States with a burden and a duty.

SERIAL STORY

Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday's As questioning proceeds, it is revealed that Mrs. "Pat" was Yardley's silent partner. Christine's identity is also made known. Then the inspector hands her a letter written by her cousin. She has been cut out of Christine's will.

CHAPTER IX

SINCE Christine had first caught sight of that pitiful body on the concrete bench, she had known horror and remorse. Now she knew terror.

"I see for you a very real danger," a voice echoed in her memory.

"But," she faltered, "Cousin Emma knew that I am not extravagant—she never suggested that she thought so. . . . And she has never mentioned her will to me. . . . I can't imagine that she wrote this letter. But—who did?"

"Miss Thorenson," the inspector asked softly, "could you identify your cousin's writing?"

"I—I don't know. This certainly looks like hers."

"Isn't there anything you can tell me," the inspector went on almost gently, "that might throw some light on this business?"

Christine thought, I ought to tell him everything—about Jasper, for instance—about that telephone girl, and about the swami's wearing that dagger.

But all that—with its inevitable questions—would take time. And if the clairvoyant had had any part in this, why should he have tried to warn her? Now she wanted only to get to her room and satisfy herself that there was, among her belongings, nothing sinister—like this letter—to complicate the incredible position in which she found herself.

"Nothing," she said, "that I can think of."

The inspector's face hardened; and he swung upon the respectable figure in wading boots who, with Bill, had just returned from the next room and had resumed his seat in the corner by the door.

"Thank you," the inspector barked, "suppose you tell me just when and where you have known this young lady."

SOME ONE—Christine thought it was Bill—cried out, "Watch him!"

Then all the lights went out, and a chair fell with a crash.

After that there was in the room nothing but the sound of scuffling feet and heavy breathing until the door opened and slammed shut.

Later, sounds of shouts and running came from the darkened corridor outside.

When the lights flashed on again, there were left in the room only the inspector, who stood with his hand on the light switch, Mr. Wilmet cowering behind a chair, and Christine. . . . "Almost at once Bill Yardley opened the door and came in."

"Well, Inspector," said Bill, "Puss-in-Boots pulled a fast one, didn't he? I think your men have lost him in the dark. I've been wondering just how long it would take you to notice that the switch was right beside his chair."

"And I'm wondering"—the inspector's eyes were far from friendly—"just how much you helped him, Yardley."

The telephone rang. Inspector Parsons picked up the instrument and listened. Then, as if the call had been a signal, he was waiting for, he suggested almost pleasantly, "You might as well all go and get some sleep."

Hardly daring to believe that they were free, Christine found herself, with Bill and Mr. Wilmet, going downstairs and into the street. As she and Bill were turning away toward Christine's lodging, Mr. Wilmet coughed apologetically.

"Miss Thorenson," he said, "of course you wouldn't care to go on sketching in that booth now—but suppose I find a quieter place? Could you meet me tomorrow morning—say at that drugstore in the Crestview—and talk things over?"

Working with you has been such a pleasure."

"Why"—Christine hesitated—"frankly I shall have to earn some money somehow, Mr. Wilmet."

"Until 10:30 tomorrow then?" the little man beamed. "Good night."

"LISTEN, Christine," Bill said as Mr. Wilmet pattered off into the darkness, "I wish you wouldn't. Did you see those flashlights going off all around you down on the Boardwalk? After tonight you're a marked woman."

Christine stopped short.

"Was that what those men were doing?" she demanded. "It hadn't occurred to me that they were sniping at me."

"Well, it had to be. Tomorrow your pictures will be all over the front page. . . . If you're really hard up, why not let me help instead of a complete outsider? Anyhow, I don't trust your funny little boss."

"Not trust him? . . . That helpless old babe-in-the-wood?"

"Old? He's probably not got much on me. Lots of men are bald at 30. And he may be helpless, but he doesn't handle the truth any too carefully."

"What do you mean?"

"He didn't go to any moving picture tonight—or if he did it was nearer 10 than nine as he said."

"How do you know?"

"I saw him down on the beach after 9:30. You see, after Labor Day, I'm permitted to take my horses to the beach. The hitching posts are right beyond that studio. Tonight I went down to see what condition they were in—and there was your little babe-in-the-wood, poking around behind that booth."

"Poking around?"

"He seemed to be examining the foundations of his booth. Just before I came along, he went off up to the Boardwalk. I don't think he even saw me."

They were strolling along the promenade toward Christine's street.

"Bill," Christine hurried on, "I've got to know—why were you beating up Jas—that man down on the beach tonight?"

Bill was silent for a long moment before he replied, "I am going to tell you because—well, you have got to know—for your own safety, Christine, he was following you."

"He was—what?"

"He was skulking in a shadow," Bill said, "when you came out of that clairvoyant's joint; and he stunk along the Boardwalk behind you, evidently waiting for a chance to stop you when there was no one else near."

CHRISTINE'S spine crawled at the picture his words conjured.

"Of course," Bill went on, "the reason I know is that I was trailing you, too. While I was down on the beach, I saw you standing under a light on the Boardwalk, reading something. I was trying to catch up with you when you went into that Temple of Truth place, and—well, I waited in a parked car just off the Boardwalk."

And now I've got something to ask you, Christine. Just now you started to call Puss-in-Boots by name, didn't you?"

"Bill," Christine said, hardly believing it yet herself, "he's Jasper—Cousin Emma's butler. . . . At least he was her butler the last I knew. . . . It's incredible, but suppose he did kill her?"

"I am supposing it," Bill said shortly. "But what's a lot more vital to me is that he wasn't following you for any good."

"But, Bill, even if he stabbed Cousin Emma—why should he want to harm me?"

"God knows—unless he's a maniac. . . . And only God knows where he's skulking now. . . . Christine, you recognized him at once, didn't you? I was sure that you had."

Christine's blood chilled.

If even Bill had been so sure, Inspector Parsons had not, as she hoped, been just guessing. . . . He knew.

told Chamberlain that Germany insisted on having Danzig and that if Poland resisted the Nazi claims and took to arms it would mean the partition of Poland; but if Poland chose a peaceful settlement Germany would agree to an arrangement somewhat similar to the government of Bohemia and Moravia—that is, a Polish nation under a German protectorate would be set up.

"Japan 'Sold Out'"

TOKIO, Japan—(AP)—Resentment at the proposed German-Soviet Russian no-aggression treaty was apparent among Japanese Wednesday and comment was heard that Japan had been "sold out" by Germany. Officials remained silent.

Japan had counted on Germany as a strong military and economic prop to her cause in China and Asia, believing a constant threat in the West would prevent Russia from embarking upon any determined attack in the Far East.

Now, authoritative sources said, Japan's immediate concern would be increased pressure on Japanese concessions in the northern half of Sakhalin island and on the border of Outer Mongolia where a "rest pocket" war has been waged since early May.

In the latter connection, Asahi, Tokyo newspaper, reported "a full battle" of the Khalka river Monday. Danel, Japanese news agency, said Japanese fliers shot down 97 Soviet planes in repulsing four raids. Five Japanese planes were lost, the agency said.

The Soviet-German negotiations caused Premier Baron Kichiro Hiranuma to confer with Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, but no official reaction was forthcoming.

Privately, some officials said they believed the Anti-Comintern pact in which Japan was league with Germany, Italy and other powers, was virtually worthless now.

Observers expected that Japan might seek to patch up her differences with Britain and the United States over the conflict in China and move into close relations with those two powers.

British Back Poland

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Great Britain Tuesday declared her determination to stand by Poland, called Parliament into emergency session Thursday to approve virtually dictatorial powers for the government, and, with France, called up thousands of troops to meet the growing German threat against her Polish ally.

Reports from France estimated the number of new French troops at 600,000, while informed quarters in London said Britain would mobilize 200,000 soldiers, sailors, aviators and civil defense forces.

The seriousness of the situation, precipitated by Monday night's announcement of an impending German-Soviet Russian treaty of non-aggression, was indicated by the British government's decision to ask for emergency powers, such as are already in effect in France, permitting the cabinet to take defense measures without consulting Parliament.

Britain's new decisions were disclosed after a four-hour cabinet meeting. A statement declared the projected German-Russian non-aggression pact, described in Berlin as a "bombshell," would have no effect on Britain's intentions to aid Poland in case of attack.

French officials in case grooves. . . . French officials remained silent but France was believed to be following the same policy as Britain.

New Records Made by Baseball Teams

Teams This Season Show No Mercy on Big League Records

By The AP Feature Service.
NEW YORK—Those New York Yankees have made a record year for the big league record-making. They've pounded the ball around in a manner showing no respect at all for marks of old and venerable standing, and their most recent display of audacious powerhitting tied a record that had been good for 33 years.

That was the 21-0 massacre of the Philadelphia Athletics, the most merciless beating administered in a major league club since the Detroit Tigers did the same thing to the Cleveland Indians in 1901.

The Yankees haven't been alone in the assault upon records. A few other clubs have figured in it collectively and individually, but McCarthy's crew leads the way.

Philadelphia Victim Again
A few examples:

They pounded hapless Philadelphia hurlers June 28 for eight homers in one game to break a seven-homer record they had shared with four other clubs. The old mark was first made in 1886. Their five homers in the other half of a doubleheader that day added up to a new record of 13 circuit blows in a double feature.

They tied a major league record by scoring in every inning against St. Louis July 26.

Individually, Lou Gehrig's 2,130-game consecutive playing streak—established when he retired this summer—stands as the greatest mark, but Rookie Richard Althea Donald broke an old first-year pitching record by winning his first 12 games. Harry Krause of the Philadelphia Athletics won 10 in 1939.

Di Maggio, Selkirk and Dahlgren teamed up to tie a major league record June 25 by hitting home runs in succession in the same inning. Ben Chapman, Trasky, and Heath of Cleveland had done the same thing three days before.

The Yanks tied one record on the unusual side, playing an entire game July 14 against Detroit in which they scored only one assist, that by Gordon. Crossetti had the only assist in a game in 1934.

Outside Contributions
Record accomplishments from other clubs included:

New York Giants, with five home runs in one inning against Cincinnati, broke a four-home record set by Pittsburgh in 1894. Cincinnati tied a record with four consecutive double-header triumphs, the last coming on July 30.

Jim Tabor, Boston Red Sox rookie, tied two major league records by hitting four home runs in a double header and hitting two home runs with the bases filled during a single game.

Ben Chapman of Cleveland rapped out three triples in a game to tie a major league record, and Marvin Owen of the Chicago White Sox tied one with four doubles in one game.

Brooklyn entered the record lists in typical daffy fashion—the Dodger outfield went through a game with the Pirates July 15 without making a single putout or assist.

Lightweight Title Regained by Amber

Armstrong Loses Because of Five Rounds of Low Punching

NEW YORK—(P)—The world lightweight championship passed back to Lou Ambers Tuesday night, but only because Henry Armstrong was penalized five rounds by referee Arthur Donovan for low punching. If it hadn't been for those five heats, which provoked a howl of protest from Armstrong's corner, Henry would have won—and retained the title in a walk.

The little negro, who came out of St. Louis three years ago to win the lightweight, welterweight, and featherweight championships, and held them simultaneously, forced the fighting all the way. He never stopped coming forward, despite the storm of left uppercuts and hooks showered on him by the Herkimer Hurricane from upstate New York.

There was nothing conclusive about the fight, except that everything is all set now for a third meeting between the pair. They tangled the first time a year ago, and the negro dethroned the square-jawed little Italian.

First to Regain Title
Lou, became the first fighter in ring history to win back the 135-pound crown.

The battle, for which Henry scaled 135 and Lou 133 1-2, was regarded in advance as the fight "nature" of the year, and it was, when Donovan's warning Armstrong for tossing punches below the belt line.

Third Fight Arranged
Contracts of the third fight already have been signed. This one puts Henry's welterweight title on the line some time this fall, and was contingent on Ambers' winning tonight. Thus, by Lou's taking the victory and the title tonight, another good-sized gate and turnout is virtually assured. A crowd of 29,088 contributed to a gross gate of $127,925.77. The net was $116,396.85.

Although referee Donovan and one of the judges, Frankie Fullman, who is ordinarily a referee, were agreed in their voting, with seven heats for Armstrong and eight for Ambers, the other judge, Jack Healy, gave Lou a lopsided margin of 11 rounds to three, with one even.

He didn't specify which post he would vacate.

Californian Testifies to Visiting German, Italian Envoys

WASHINGTON—(P)—A mining employer told the Dies Committee Tuesday of a long battle against "Jewish Communism," then testified that he was against all Jews and recommended that they be deported to Madagascar.

Henry D. Allen of Pasadena, Calif., testified that there was abundant cooperation between groups devoted to a fight against "Jewish-Communism," although it never had been possible to unite them. Among the groups, he said, was the German-American Bund.

The committee was interested in a trip which Allen made to Washington in January, 1938, with many missions to perform—among them visits to the Italian and German embassies, and to the organization of an Arabian picket line at the Mayflower hotel, where a Palestine relief convention was in progress.

Committee members' questions brought statements that Allen was not against all Jews, just those who were Communists, and that a majority of Jewish leaders were Communists. Chairman Dies (Dem., Tex.) asked: "Mr. Allen, aren't you just plain anti-Jewish?"

"Personally, am, yes."

Representative Voorhis (Dem., Calif.) observing that the witness was in favor of driving the Jews out of Germany, Italy and the United States, asked where he would have them go.

"There is a large island off the African coast, called Madagascar," was the reply.

They Did Bang-Up Job But Bang Came Early

SOMERSET, Ky.—(P)—Just before quitting for the day, workmen made preparations for blasting early the next morning in a rock quarry.

Dynamite and fuses were inserted in holes drilled by workers.

That night, during a severe electrical storm, lightning struck the quarry, touched off the dynamite and demolished a steam shovel and other equipment.

Between the South pole and latitude 60 there are no land animals larger than insects and no industries other than whaling.

Baby Born Within Another, in Twins

Cesarean Operation Performed Upon 6-Weeks-Old Child

LONDON, Eng.—(P)—A successful cesarean operation upon a six-weeks-old girl was announced Tuesday by the Coventry and Warwickshire hospital. British medical records showed only two similar cases, the most recent in 1911. Hospital authorities said the girl was discharged in good health.

The second baby, incapable of life, weighed two pounds.

Scientific sources said the baby removed by the operation was a twin who had failed to develop properly. Twins of this sort one growing inside the body of the other, are uncommon but well known in medical literature, they said. These buried twins not as a rule reach full development.

If you should die tonight will your family be adequately protected.

England's population increased very slowly during the 700 years preceding 1800, then started a rapid rise which still continues.

If all the 4-H club members in the United States were to march single file, all in one long line, that line would be more than 700 miles long.

Grover Suggests Monday Holidays

Advocates Moving Every Holiday to the Nearest Monday

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON—Since the President has started juggling holidays, let's hope he goes all the way and juggles so they all fall on Monday.

You might surmise that we are a supporter of the long weekend. That would be a correct guess. Moreover we have a large following, particularly among city folk who often enough never get daylight off-hours except on week-ends.

The latter is exaggeration, no doubt, but the idea is that given a longer week-end once in a while there would be time for ambitious undertakings, such as visiting the Washington art galleries or going to one of the fairs.

This business of making all holidays fall on Monday has been a long time getting under way. Yet it would not present any insurmountable difficulties. Take Washington's birthday. The date means practically nothing at all, from a historical standpoint. Some time after Washington's birth the accidental world began monkeying with the calendar and threw his birthday out of place. The old calendar says he was born on a different day from the one the new calendar credits.

Columbus Day a Loss
Columbus day this year comes on Friday and is a dead loss. Usually it is anyway, because almost no states and to whomever think the discovery of America is anything to go mad about. They don't observe a holiday for it. But if they did, this year it could be shifted over to the next Monday, and something could be done about it. With Saturday afternoon, Sunday and Monday off, a fair amount of home work could be done. There might be time for letter to Aunt Rebekah that you put off writing just after the 1929 crash for fear she might make a touch.

Republicans already are gleefully claiming that the President will lose the football vote for shifting Thanksgiving from November 30 to November 23. Many small colleges hope to take in enough on the big Thanksgiving day game to even up for all the losses on the bad days in between. And now that their schedules are all made out and ironpounded with contracts, along comes the President and changes the nature of the contracts.

To Supreme Court?
Some irate Republican football fan might get just mad enough to take it to the Supreme Court. After all, the President has voided the contract that called for Jenkins Teachers college to play old Kiosha on Thanksgiving day. It's worse than the gold clause. The big game won't be on a holiday at all, but is merely another of those post-season games that attract nobody but the faithful, particularly if it has to come in the middle of the week—on a Thursday that isn't Thanksgiving any more.

And the Supreme Court might get
